Women's Spaces celebrates 10 years

By Serena Makofsky

Congratulations to Elaine B. Holtz and Kenneth Norton, co-producers of the radio show "Women's Spaces." This year marks their tenth of broadcasting. Elaine has a long history with KBBF when, in 1977, she hit the airwaves as women's music was coming of age. Her theme song was "The Woman in Your Life is You," sung by Alix Dobkin, which is still the song heard at the opening and closing of her shows.

This year's Valentine's Day Show airs Monday February 14 from 11-12pm, replaying 11pm to midnight. It will feature Elaine's poem, "Friends and Lovers," chronicling how relationships begin, opening with, "I don't remember missing you until I started kissing you."

There are over 400 "Women's Spaces" shows archived on the website at www.womensspaces.com. Programs include interviews with ordinary, diverse women doing extraordinary things, with appearances by Congresswoman Lynn Woolsey, Women's National History Project co-founder Molly Murphy McGregor, historians Gaye LeBaron and Mary Moore, union organizer Lisa Maldonado, historian Dr. Kim D. Hester Williams, author Jean Shinoda Bolen, and Women's Rights attorney Gloria Allred.

Three of Elaine's favorite interviews are with award winning singer-songwriters Earth Mama, Becky Hobbs, and Alix Dobkin.

Listeners can contact Elaine at elainebholtz@gmail.com.

Tune in to 89.1 FM for Vital community information

Thursday's bilingual "Líderes de Futuro" program, running 5 to 7 p.m., highlights essential information for people living and working in Sonoma County. In the time of the pandemic, host Rafael Vásquez has dedicated airtime to the themes of Covid, mental health, and resources for students and families.

Vásquez adds, "This program focuses on education, immigration, politics, mental health and how these issues affect our community. The guests for the show include local and national organizations."
